

Free thermal images

Where are you losing heat?

- We can offer you a free thermal image of your home to detect and record variations in heat. Heat flowing from your walls and windows loses you precious money.
- The thermal image is taken by one of our team of trained volunteers during a winter evening, when there is the biggest difference between external and internal temperatures. This gives the starkest evidence of gaps in your insulation.
- We will send you a copy of the image with a short report explaining how it is interpreted. If we find problems which require more detailed images, these can be provided for a reasonable fee.
- For even more information on how to make your home cheaper to run, please book a free energy survey. This can either be completed on-line, by phone, or we can visit your home.
- The home visit takes about one hour. Then our technical expert sends you a written report with suggestions how to keep your home cosy and cheaper to run.

Is this your home?
Heat flooding out of doors, windows and walls.

This could be your home.
Insulated. Warm.
Cheap to run.
